IOA Announces Four New Board Members

San Francisco, CA, April 15, 2013

The Institute on Aging (IOA) is excited to welcome Jonathan Schwartz, the former President and CEO of Sun Microsystems, Inc. and the current President and CEO of CareZone.com. CareZone is a cloud service for individuals caring for children, parents or other loved ones.

Also new to the board are Jonathan Ocker of Orrick, Harrington & Sutcliff, Barbara Taylor, KCBS's San Francisco City Hall Bureau Chief, and Dr. Louise Walter, the Interim Chief of the Division of Geriatrics at UCSF and Director of the Research Enhancement Award Program at the San Francisco VA.

“The collective wisdom and experience of these new board members will be a valuable addition to the IOA as the organization plans for the future and continues to work towards improving the lives of seniors as they age,” says President and CEO Tom Briody.

IOA strives to enhance the quality of life for adults as they age by enabling them to maintain their health, well-being, independence and participation in the community. The organization fulfills this mission for a diverse community by developing and providing innovative programs in health, social services, creative arts, community and professional education.

Institute on Aging (IOA) is a community-based, non-profit organization that touches the lives of thousands in San Francisco, Marin, and the Peninsula. IOA's breadth of services enable adults to maintain their health, well-being, independence and participation in the community. For more than 25 years, IOA has developed and provided innovative programs in health, social service, creative arts, community and professional education.
